

CONNECTING TO CARE

BHG takes a patient-centered approach to treatment that helps each individual to take their life back. This includes evaluating their needs and connecting them to the appropriate resources and services to ensure they have every opportunity for success and well-being. Our patients continue their daily lives – living at home, holding down a job, and engaging with their family and community – while being treated for their addiction.

You are starting your personal journey to recover. You might feel alone, but you're about to find a whole team, a whole community, that is ready to welcome you. You might feel beaten up, but you aren't beaten down. You got yourself here, and you still have fight left in you. We're glad you came to us, by whatever pathway that brought you here. There's a lot of work we must do together, but we know you can do it. There is nothing wrong with you that can't be fixed by what's right with you.
